

Los Angeles Times

HOME

'Amazing Race' producer Jonathan Littman buys 'Entourage' house

The Tuscan-style villa with seven bedrooms and 10 bathrooms was used in the hit HBO show's seventh season.

By Lauren Beale, Los Angeles Times

August 3, 2011 5:06 p.m.

Emmy-winning TV producer Jonathan Littman has purchased the "Entourage" house in Encino for $4.2 million, according to public records.

The setting of the HBO show's Season 7 last year, the gated Tuscan-style villa has 9,010 square feet of living space with a media room, study, seven bedrooms and 10 bathrooms. Features include 22-foot-high beamed ceilings and seven fireplaces. The master suite has an exercise room and French doors leading to a private patio with a spa.

The lot, more than three-quarters of an acre, includes a mosaic-tiled pool, spa and waterfall. An additional 1,975-square-foot outdoor living space has a kitchen, a barbecue, a bar and a fireplace.

Littman, an executive at Jerry Bruckheimer Television, has been a producer for shows including "Chase" (2010-11), "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" (2000-present) and "The Amazing Race" (2001-present), for which he shares seven Emmys.

Jill Krutchik of Rodeo Realty represented the Littman. Bob Hurwitz of Hurwitz James Co., Beverly Hills, had the listing, the Multiple Listing Service shows.

lauren.beale@latimes.com